Master of Arts in Branding Transmedia Communication

RPC-SO-51-No.859-2023

Transmedia communication focuses on the audience as the main part of the process. This program will train experts to tell stories across multiple channels and platforms that are shared on social networks. The goal is not just to copy the same story but to share it in a way that each medium adds something unique. As people consume content on the move, it is essential to provide access through various channels, ensuring that products reach them when, where, and how they want.

This program uses expert knowledge in new media and promotes Transmedia Brand Management. It creates strategies to engage new audiences and encourages research on how to integrate brands into new technologies to help close the digital divide.
